HLSR Ladies Talk to Children about Farm Facts

On Thursday, January 26, six members of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo (HLSR) Ladies' Go Texan Committee made an educational presentation to Pre-k, kindergarten and life skill classes at Outley Elementary School. The ladies showed the children a presentation with pictures of farm animals and explained how the animals are used in the agriculture industry. Additionally, students learned about, and had the ability to see and touch, grain stalks, cotton still on a branch and a cow hide.

The HLSR mascot Miss Moo even made an appearance and students discussed the differences between Miss Moo and cows they might see out in the fields across Texas. She helped close out the student assembly by leading everyone in the Hokey Pokey dance! School secretary Viva Carson said, "We love getting the students excited about the rodeo. Some may not have a chance to go, but these women come to teach them in an entertaining and hands-on way that's really special." The visiting committee members are all volunteers and serve as HLSR ambassadors through public relations efforts and put in hundreds of hours doing the educational shows.
